marrying Khloe was the worst mistake Lamar ever made.

"The Kardashians don't give a f about my son," Joe declared. "They brought him down. Lamar would be better off without them."

Lamar, 33, stands accused of using crack cocaine and cheating on his 29-year-old wife Khloe with several other women. Lamar has denied having a crack problem, but Joe blames the Kardashians for his son's problems. "I wish Lamar had never married Khloe," he said. "She's controlling. I think the best thing for him would be to divorce her and try to get his life together as a single man."

But Joe saved his angriest words for Lamar's mother-in-law.

Guards noticed that the 66-year-old seemed to be hiding some-thing lunch and seized more than a from the would-be smuggler, a close source told The ENQUIRER.

Doctors had previously warned O.J., a severe diabetic, to exercising more – or he could be dead within months.

"BUT THE TEMPTATION OF the cookies in the prison the cookies in the prison chow line was too much for him," said the source. "O.J. has the doctors talked to him, but he loves sweets, and after a few weeks he couldn't take it anymore."

O.J. was walking back to his cell from lunch when a guard ordered him to stop.

"Everyone thought he had smuggled in a cell phone or some other kind of contraband, so when the guard started pulling cookies out of O.J.'s shirt, the other inmates started laughing so bard they nearly fell over," said the source. "O.J. just stood there with a goofy grin on his face as the guard kept digging inside his shirt and throwing the cookies on the floor."

Ugly divorce sparked downward spiral

HOCKING new testimony in the $40 billion Michael Jackson wrongful death suit has exposed his ex-wife Lisa Marie Presley as a manipulative liar who sent the King of Pop into a tragic death spiral!

In a blockbuster courtroom statement, Jackson's longtime makeup artist revealed that Lisa Marie begged Michael to work on their failing marriage and then stunned the unsuspecting superstar by slapping him with divorce papers.

Now sources tell The ENQUIRER they believe that Lisa Marie's ugly betrayal broke Michael's heart and led him to numb the pain with drugs.

"Michael trusted Lisa Marie more than anyone else in his life," said a Jackson family insider.

"When she betrayed him, he was consumed with sadness and used drugs as an emotional escape. His drug use increased immensely after that and led him down the Humiliated self-destructive path that ultimately ended with his death."

Jackson at a New York restaurant in

1996 with Karen Fave

Lisa Marie married Michael in May 1994, but sources say the union quickly unraveled over his controlling nature, the controversial religion Scientology and accusations that Michael was a child molester. In a dramatic courtroom appearance in May, Michael's former makeup artist Karen Faye described how a deceitful Lisa Marie, now 45, manipulated the "Thriller" star into thinking their marriage could be saved, and then pulled the rug out from under him by filing for divorce in January 1996.

"Lisa Marie Presley was calling Michael, begging him not to divorce her," Faye, 60, testified in the wrongful death suit filed by Jackson's heirs against concert promoter AEG.

"They weren't getting along. She said, 'Let's try to work this out.' "Michael kept saying, 'No, I don't think it's going to work.' She begged and begged, 'Please don't file, please don't file.' So he promised her he wouldn't file for divorce. The next morning it was all over the press – she filed for divorce. He was devastated. He had decided to really try again with her. Then she turned around and did that."

Stunning truth about King of

Pop's death

Faye's testimony offers the first-ever glimpse at the inner workings of the couple's bitter split – and it's sparked an outcry over Lisa Marie's dirty divorce dealings.

"LISA MARIE'S DECISION TO GO

behind Michael's back and file for divorce was definitely a well-planned strategy that left him emotionally and psychologically wounded," Ian Halperin, who interviewed Faye for his 2009 unauthorized biography "Unmasked: The Final Years of Michael Jackson," told The ENQUIRER.

"Michael was a fragile person who turned to prescription medication for emotional escape. That's why Lisa Marie's divorce betrayal was such a damaging turning point in his life."

Despite their nasty split, Jackson – who passed away from a drug overdose at age 50 in June 2009 – was thrilled when he tied the knot with Lisa Marie, noted the family insider.

"Michael was a huge fan of Elvis Presley," said the source. "To him, there was no greater prize than marrying the King's daughter.

"So he was shell-shocked when he learned Lisa Marie had double-crossed him by asking him not to file for divorce, and then going behind his back to file the papers first. He trusted her implicitly, and when she broke that trust it sent him into a tailspin that he was never able to recover from."

Insiders say that when the couple married, Lisa Marie hoped to convince Michael to join the controversial Church of Scientology, which she belonged to at the time. "With Michael's worldwide fan base, recruiting him as a member would have helped Scientology universally," noted another source.

when they were a cou

sa Marie

While Halperin says Michael came very close to joining the church, he eventually decided against it, inflicting a serious blow to his relationship with Lisa Marie.

Years later, she said she ended the marriage because she was troubled by how Michael tried to control her life. But sources believe the union was irretrievably broken when Lisa Marie stumbled across evidence that she came to believe confirmed the molestation charges leveled against Jackson in 1993 by a 13-year-old boy.

Lisa Marie's step-uncle, the Rev. Rick Stanley, told The ENQUIRER in January 1998 that during an intense 10-hour session with Lisa Marie, "She said, 'I didn't (believe the allegations) until I went to Michael's bedroom. In the closet, I found videos and magazines that convinced me the story is true."

In a shocking disclosure, the Rev. Stanley added that she said: "Please tell me, have you ever heard of a pedophile getting his life turned around?"

THE WHOLE UGLY episode didn't sit well with her relatives.

"Lisa's family feared her association with Michael would damage the Presley name and wanted her to distance herself from him," said an insider. "But she promised she wouldn't divorce him, and when she did, it absolutely destroyed Michael. It pushed him further into a downward spiral of drug abuse."

Another source added: "Lisa Marie's sucker-punch divorce left Michael feeling not only betrayed, but also terrified of what she could expose about his personal life. He was a nervous wreck, and that led to a perfect storm of emotional conflict that heightened his dependency on pain killers."

Halperin concluded: "After Lisa Marie betrayed Michael, not even his family or tight-knit group of friends could save him from drugs. He went down a dark path, and couldn't find his way back."

Baby comment HUMILIATES

IRELAND

HORTLY after welcoming his new baby, Alec Baldwin ignited a new family feud! The star infuriated his 17-year-old daughter Ireland for revealing on national TV that she had vet to meet her little sister nearly three weeks after her birth. sources told The ENQUIRER.

The 55-year-old "30 Rock" star and his second wife, 29-year-old yoga instructor Hilaria Thomas, had their first child together, Carmen, on Aug. 23. And during a Sept. 12 appearance on "Late Show with David Letterman," big-mouth Baldwin revealed that Ireland hadn't yet seen the baby and predicted their meeting would be awkward.

"It's weird, you know?" the actor told Letterman. "We're going to hand her this three-week-old baby and say, 'This is your sister.'"

STUNNED BY HIS STATEMENT,

Ireland felt "really embarrassed," said an insider, who added that she said her dad's comment made her "look like some absentee big sister who doesn't have time for family."

Right after the interview ended, the insider says the leggy 6-foot-2 model called her dad and "told him she doesn't want him talking about her because he always ends up putting his foot in his mouth."

While a rep for Baldwin insisted that Alec's "relationship with his daughter is great," father and daughter have had some rocky times since his bitter divorce battle with Ireland's mom, Kim

> Basinger, was finalized in 2002. It made spectacular headlines in 2007 after Ireland failed to answer a phone call from him and an enraged

Alec left a voice mail blasting his daughter as a "rude, thoughtless little pig."

Ireland - who lives in L.A. with Kim while Alec is based in New York - has gone on to enjoy wonderful success as a model. But because of her hectic schedule, she hasn't had time to meet her baby half sister.

However, the young beauty posted an online message for little Carmen, warning her: "You have been born into one crazy family. You are both lucky and cursed at the same time."

ANISTON'S FED UP with Julia Jennifer totally disapproves of Emma's hard Roberts' niece partying and public blowups, says an insider

WILD-CHILD EMMA TOO MUCH FOR JEN

ENNIFER ANISTON has had enough of her "We're the Millers" co-star Emma Roberts because of the starlet's out-of-control behavior, sources say.

"Jen totally disapproves of Emma's hard partying and public blowups," an insider told The ENQUIRER. "She's even told Emma that unless she shapes up, she may not be invited back for a possible 'Millers' sequel."

Emma, the 22-year-old niece of America's sweetheart Julia Roberts, was busted for domestic violence in Montreal in July after an alleged scuffle with boyfriend Evan Peters, star of TV's "American Horror Story." Emma was released after questioning, and the case was closed.

THE "NANCY DREW" CUTIE ALSO

got slammed for trying to cut in line at legendary New York bakery Dominique Ansel in August. And a while back, she reportedly had to be carried from a Michigan nightclub after partying up a storm at her "Scream 4" co-star Hayden Panettiere's 21st birthday party.

"Jen's known Emma since she was 12," said the insider.

"It's sad because Jen's been backing her career all the way. Jen's an old pro, and the crazy headlines about Emma and her diva behavior just don't sit well with her."

As The ENQUIRER has reported, Emma's concerned Aunt Julia also planned an intervention for her wild-child niece.

"Julia's tried everything," said the source. "She's even gotten Emma into meditating, but Emma's losing allies fast."

MEANWHILE. WITH "WE'RE THE

Millers" banking around $180 million worldwide, Aniston is looking to launch a possible franchise with the raunchy R-rated comedy, said the insider.

"And she's not going to have her plans sidetracked by someone who's not in control of their PR," added the source. "That's a showbiz basic."

proved he had an eye for art when he told his family that the tiny canvas might have been painted by famed 19th century landscape artist John Constable. Only a faint signature on the back of the painting's gold frame hinted at its origin.

"I don't think my dad believed it entirely," said Darvell's son, Robert Jr. "So it became a bit of a family joke for years."

Darvell handed down the painting to his son during a clear-out of the family home last year.

After that, Robert Jr., a graphic designer, decided to find out once and for all if the painting was done by Constable, and he embarked on a year-long quest to have the painting analyzed by an expert.

The tiny artwork was finally appraised, on CNBC's "Treasure Detectives," and that's when he found out that his dad really had discovered a treasure.

AFTER EXTENSIVE STUDY. HOST

Curtis Dowling concluded that the painting was a genuine Constable – and worth a whopping $388,000. He believes the picture once belonged to Constable's father-in-law.

"It's a dream come true!" exclaimed Robert Jr. "I'm over the moon, but also shocked to find out what the painting really is. It hasn't really sunk in yet."

The artist's works are extremely collectible. Just last year, his painting "The Lock" sold for an astronomical $35 million.

But Constable did not have the Darvell family's Midas touch. While his masterpieces hang in major museums around the world these days, during his lifetime he sold only 20 paintings in his native England.

Kardashian stepdad TERRIFIED HE'LL DIE

ATTLED by several cancer scares, "Keeping Up with the Kardashians" star Bruce Jenner is terrified he's doomed to die of the disease.

The 63-year-old Olympic gold medal hero suffered through a bout of skin cancer in 2012, and earlier this year he and wife Kris feared he had a malignant brain tumor.

Now, a new brush with the dreaded ailment has convinced a tearful Bruce that it will end his life.

Just a few weeks ago, the family patriarch had such a big chunk of tissue removed from his nose that it required 30 stitches. The next day he was photographed getting a cup of coffee with a huge bandage covering the wound.

AFTER THE OPERATION, A family source disclosed: "Bruce broke down and cried to Kris that he thinks a cancer is going to take him out in the next few years.

"He's constantly checking his body for lumps, bumps, strange growths and skin discolorations. Just recently, he raced to his doctor after he spotted a new dark spot on his arm. "He'd convinced himself it was another bout of skin cancer, but the doctor said it was nothing but an age spot."

Last year started out with a big scare for the decathlon champ when he had skin cancer surgery on his face and wound up losing a chunk of his right cheek.

And on a June episode of "KUWTK," Bruce went to a doctor to get his hearing checked. He and Kris - a cigarette smoker who also lives in fear of the disease - fretted that he had brain cancer. Fortunately, an MRI ruled that out.

But even though doctors have advised Bruce to avoid sun to reduce his risk of getting more skin cancer, a source revealed: "He's on the golf course in the blazing sun several days a week. And he insisted on spending this past summer at the beach in Malibu."

GING superstar Mel Gibson is suddenly looking like a muscle-bound bodybuilder – and medical experts believe he has resorted to steroids, human growth hormone or both to bulk up quickly for his role in Sylvester Stallone's "The Expendables 3."

The ENQUIRER has blockbuster photos of the hunk-turned-hulk at the Beverly Hills Rejuvenation Center, which specializes in controversial, prescriptiononly hormone replacement injections.

Hollywood's most infamous hothead allegedly exploded at Malibu cops recently, and medical experts who haven't treated Gibson say the 57-year-old actor's behavior is consistent with "roid rage," which can be induced by taking hormones.

The experts add that it's unlikely such a dramatic change in Gibson's physique could be accomplished without steroids or human growth hormone.

"THE RECENT GROWTH IN Mel

Gibson's muscle size is incredible and so spectacular that if he is doing this with just lifting weights, he is able to grow muscle better than just about everyone else," declared Dr. Gabe Mirkin, a retired sports medicine specialist who has not treated Gibson.

On Sept. 6, the "Braveheart" star was spotted leaving the Beverly Hills Rejuvenation Center with its co-owner Dan Holtz, a major advocate of human growth hormone.

Gibson's representative denied he is taking steroids or HGH, insisting that he uses only vitamins and supplements and has been eating well and working out with a trainer. But shocking evidence - including Mel's recent, out-of-control encounter with Malibu cops indicates that might not be the case, suggest experts.

On Aug. 31, Mel - who is divorced with eight kids - and a female companion were stopped at 1 a.m. at a drunk-driving checkpoint on Pacific Coast Highway.

Officers say Gibson was asked for his license and was pulled over for a secondary screening when he said he didn't have it.

The "Mad Max" actor reportedly

MID a likely divorce from Catherine Zeta-Jones, Michael Douglas faces new heartbreak as his druggie son Cameron has been moved to a higher security prison.

The troubled 34-year-old whose mother is Douglas' ex-wife Diandra - has been transferred from a minimum security facility in Pennsylvania to the medium security Federal Correctional Institution (FCI) in Cumberland, Md.

The transfer was most likely due to "behavioral issues," Chris Burke, a public affairs specialist with the Federal Bureau of Prisons, told The ENQUIRER.

Such issues can range from a "history of drug abuse, escape attempts, as well as disciplinary and criminal histories," Burke added.

NOW, AN INSIDER SAYS THAT

Cameron's woes helped fuel his father's split from Hollywood beauty Catherine after nearly 13 years of marriage and two children, son Dylan, 13, and daughter Carys,

"Cameron's problems caused constant grief for Michael and Catherine," a source told The ENQUIRER.

"Catherine felt Cameron was a spoiled kid who never got the discipline that he needed. She tried to push Michael into using 'tough love' with him, but Michael refused.

"Besides that, Catherine never wanted Cameron around their children, and it led to shouting matches between her and Michael."

In May 2010, former DJ Cameron, who had been sentenced to a fiveyear term on drug charges, was in Cumberland, Md.

But four and a half more years were tacked on to his sentence in December 2011 for drug possession while in prison.

In March 2012, Cameron was moved to the FCI in Loretto, Pa., where a brutal beating from other inmates left him with a broken leg and finger in December 2012.

The following January, a urinalysis revealed drugs in his system, and Cameron was sent to solitary confinement. He's now in the FCI in Cuambeitians, Md.

When Michael won an Emmy for his role as Liberace in HBO's "Behind the Candelabra" on Sept. 22, he gave a shout-out to Cameron, saying: "I'm hoping I'll be able to ... see him soon."

Backstage, he told reporters that he's not allowed to see Cameron "for two years" due to "punishment" for Cameron "having a slip." He added that he's very, very disappointed with the ELLTALE photos obtained by The ENQUIRER show a shocking new weight gain for "Fat Actress" star Kirstie Allev.

What's more, experts say that after years of vo-vo dieting, her arms have been horribly disfigured, and she's now battling a deadly disease!

The 62-year-old Emmy winner has ballooned back up to an estimated 220 pounds after turning to binge eating to cope with the stress of her feud with former Scientology pal Leah Remini, a source says.

But experts warn that Kirstie's roller-coaster ride of weight gain and loss – at 5-foot-8, she's bounced between 140 pounds and 230 pounds over the past few Braras- Ishaking QUIIRERolfeon her body.

"Yo-yo dieting kills," Dr. Gabe Mirkin, an Orlando-based physician who has not treated Kirstie, told The ENQUIRER.

"It causes diabetes, as well as inflammation that can lead to heart disease, heart attacks, many forms of cancer and premature death. Obese people are at high risk for all these lifeshortening events."

loss specialist who has not treated her, added: "Kirstie is suffering from a deadly disease. Obesity is considered to death, including heart disease, stroke and cancer."

Kirstie's latest weight woes were triggered by her dustup with former close pal Leah Remini when the "King of Queens" actress decided to leave the Church of Scientology, according to an insider.

After Leah announced her decision, Kirstie posted a cryptic writing about losing someone she "thought was my friend" and then adding: "f 'em."

Feeling betrayed by Leah, Kirstie apparently sought com-fort i

"Kirstie is a very emotional person," said the insider. "Unfortunately, when she gets upset she turns to food. And this feud with Leah has really kept her off balance."

Sadly, it's yet another chapter in Kirstie's ongoing battle with her weight.

THE FORMER "CHEERS" STAR

once crushed the scales at 230 pounds. After joining "Dancing with the Stars" in 2011, she claimed to have dropped to 140 pounds, slimming down from a size 16 to a svelte size 8.

ported, Kirstie ballooned back up to 200 pounds after her first run

"Kirstie went back to some of her old bad habits," said a source. "She smoked cigarettes to kill her appetite, ate fatty junk foods when she was under stress and vegged out in front of the TV or the computer."

Kirstie slimmed down when she was invited back for the "All-Stars" season of "Dancing," and a source says although she claimed she did it with an organic diet and daily dance workouts, she was also on a crash diet.

Now, as a result of bingeing over her feud with Leah, Kirstie be a disease because it directly cointribudes up other 30 deadles 220 pounds, a source says.

recently, the appearance of her arms shocked an onlooker.

"It looked like she suffered from some horrible flesh-eating disfigurement and someone had done a bad job patching it up," said the eyewitness.

ACCORDING TO EXPERTS,

the condition of Kirstie's arms can be attributed to yo-yo dieting.

"It appears she has cellulite as well as a loosening of the soft tissues in her arm as a result of her yo-yo dieting," Dr. Brian Glatt, assistant clinical professor of plastic surgery at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, who has not treated Kirstie, told The ENQUIRER.

"When the soft tissue of the skin begins to thin out, the underlying veins become more pronounced, and varicose veins become engorged and unattractive."

Meanwhile, Kirstie continues to play with fire.

"Kirstie's caught between a rock and a hard place," said the insider. "She doesn't know how to exercise properly, and she doesn't know how to eat properly. She just seems to roll with the latest diet or weight loss craze."

LEAN-CUT "High School Musical" star Zac Efron collapsed after a "heroin" overdose – and The ENQUIRER has the shocking photo proof!

An exhaustive investigation has uncovered the stunning details about a drug-fueled party in the 25-year-old Disney actor's New York City hotel suite earlier this year. After hours of drinking and abusing drugs, a source says Zac OD'd on the powerful painkiller oxycodone – known on the streets as "hillbilly heroin" – and had to be revived by other guests.

The photo, taken in the wee hours of Jan. 3 at the Thompson Hotel, shows Zac out cold.

"I was scared for him," an eyewitness told The ENQUIRER. "If he doesn't clean himself up, he'll be Hollywood's next big drug tragedy."

The eyewitness, who passed a polygraph test, said that Zac consumed massive quantities of oxycodone and the stimulant Adderall during the late-night bash. The source says Zac also smoked marijuana and was intoxicated from hours of drinking.

The actor passed out in his suite at the Thompson Hotel in New York City

Zac's drug use hit headlines a few weeks ago after it was revealed he'd completed a stint in rehab to deal with an addiction to cocaine. His abuse of the drug allegedly "spiraled out of control" during the filming of Seth Rogen's movie "Neighbors."

Published reports also said he had experimented with MDMA

- a pure form of an ingredient found in Ecstasy tablets, which is known as "Molly" on the street.

Before heading

Zac became a teenybopper idol after starring in the "High School Musical" films up to his suite on the night of the overdose, Zac was said to be out partying with two female friends. Then he wanted to score oxycodone pills, says the source.

"THEY HAD TO DRIVE AROUND and go to two separate dealers because he wanted so many pills," the source revealed.

The drug, a prescription painkiller sold in tablets under the trade name OxyContin, got the nickname "hillbilly heroin" because of its abuse in rural areas in the mid-'90s. A synthetic form of opioid analgesic, oxycodone is similar to morphine and is usually prescribed to cancer sufferers for their pain.

"Oxycodone is highly addictive," Dr. Damon Raskin, an addiction expert and internist at the addiction treatment center Cliffside Malibu, told The ENQUIRER. "As the brain's receptors become tolerant of the drug, a person needs more and more to achieve the same high."

On the street, the pills sell for $30 each, and the source says Zac requested that party guests buy 40 – at a cost of $1.200.

When guests arrived at the hotel, Zac apparently came to the door unshaven, wearing sweatpants

"If he didn't have such a need for the oxy, I don't think he would have let us come into the room," the source said. "He was like a junkie. He wanted the drugs so bad, and this was the only way he could get them."

The star's hotel suite was messy and littered with empty alcohol bottles, says the source, adding that the partiers smoked marijuana with Zac before they moved on to oxycodone.

"Most people crush it and snort one pill at a time, but Zac doubled that," the source said. "He went through a lot of pills even though it was clear he was entering a danger zone."

According to the source, the actor then bought the ADHD medication Adderall from one of his guests, explaining that he needed it so that he could be alert the following day on the set of his film "Are We Officially Dating?" But the source says that Zac swallowed those pills right away and admitted that he'd smoked pot and used "Molly" the night before.

Zac then disappeared into the bedroom with a 25-year-old brunette, and "she later told me they had sex," said the source.

By 4 a.m., the actor was out cold, leaving his fellow partiers terrified.

"My worst fear was that he had died from an overdose," the source said.

According to Dr. Raskin, who has not treated Zac, increased doses of oxycodone can lead to serious respiratory and cardiac issues – including a heart attack.

Fortunately, concerned partygoers were able to rouse Zac after repeatedly slapping his face, then dousing him with water.

He was lucky to fare better than "Glee" star Cory Monteith, who died of a heroin and alcohol overdose in July, and Heath Ledger, the "Brokeback Mountain" hunk who accidently overdosed from prescription drugs in 2008.

"I'm glad to hear that Zac went to rehab," the source added." He clearly had a serious drug problem." by BRETTE TROST

Macaulay & Zac shared same drug dealer - SOURCE

AC EFRON has the SAME drug dealer as former child star-turnedijunkie Macaulay Culkin! Zac's drug secret blew up recently when published reports revealed he'd been to rehab for cocaine addiction and had also experimented with the street drug "Molly." We now know he's also used "hillbilly heroin" oxycodone. Meanwhile, in August 2012, The ENQUIRER revealed that "Home Alone" star Macaulay was shooting up heroin and oxycodone and spending up to $6,000 a month on other dangerous painkillers, including Percocet and Vicodin. Culkin's rep denied the report.

"WHILE CULKIN AND EFRON ARE NOT

Hollywood pals, they share the same drug dealer," a source divulged. "And they share a taste for oxycodone.

"Zac hasn't been as extreme in his oxy use as Macaulay, but if he continues to snort it, he'll eventually need a stronger fix, and the next step would be shooting it with a needle, like Mac.

"Macaulay's downward spiral should be enough to show Zac what the effects of drugs will do to you."

Keith Kakugawa is currently in a Humboldt County, Calif., jail accused of sex crimes

Terrorized woman fled naked after ordeal AT HANDS OF BARACK'S BUDDY

RESIDENT OBAMA's best high school buddy has been charged with several sex crimes - and bitter Keith Kakugawa may air all of Obama's dirty laundry!

"It's a sad tale of how two young boys who were best friends in high school took drastically different paths in their lives," Keith's dad Kenneth Kakugawa told The ENQUIRER in an exclusive interview. "When Keith started to face hard times, he grew resentful and bitter of Barry's (Obama's high school nickname) success."

Keith, a 54-year-old unemployed former Wall Street trader, has struggled with alcoholism and bounced in and out of prison several times, mostly for crimes related to cocaine possession and dealing.

But after being charged with five felonies following his alleged assault of a woman on Sept. 13, Keith is facing some serious prison time.

And that could be bad news for Obama, who's seen his approval ratings drop in recent weeks.

"Keith knows a lot of secrets that could prove to be embarrassing for the commander in chief if they get out," a source told The ENQUIRER. "They're mostly youthful indiscretions, but he would know more about Barack's teenage drug-taking than anyone. And now that he's really desperate and facing a lengthy stretch, he could spill the beans."

In official documents obtained by The ENQUIRER, a woman alleged that an intoxicated Keith attacked her at her apartment after they'd gone out to dinner. She claims that he punched, slapped and sexually assaulted her, and she had to escape by running outside naked.

AMONG THE CHARGES LEVELED against Keith are sexual penetration by a foreign object, false imprisonment with violence, and battery with serious bodily injury. He was booked into California's Humboldt County Jail on $400,000 bail and faces a minimum of 10 years behind bars if convicted of all charges.

"I'm sure Barry is going to be disappointed when he finds out that Keith has been arrested for rape," Kenneth said.

"They were as close as brothers at one time in their lives." Indeed, Obama wrote about Keith - calling him "Ray" to protect his privacy - in his best-selling autobiography, "Dreams from My Father: A Story of Race and Inheritance."

"Despite the difference in age, we'd fallen into an easy friendship, due in no small part to the fact that together we made up almost half of Punahou's black high school population," Obama recalled. "I enjoyed his company; he had a warmth and brash humor."

Kenneth says the last time Keith spoke to Obama was in 2007, during his first White House campaign.

Secrets he's hiding about "Keith was homeless at the time, fresh out of a California state prison on a drug-related conviction," Kenneth explained.

"He called Barry's Senate office and was eventually patched through to him. Keith asked him for help, but instead of helping him, Barry brushed him off and put him in touch with his assistant.

DON'T MESS WITH THIS CLERK! Iraq War vet gives armed robber

Jon Lewis Alexander, who served 30 years in the military, luckily carries a handgun in a

holster on his hip

N armed hold-up man had the tables turned on him when a store clerk drew his own weapon and threatened to blow his head off!

"I pulled my gun because I wasn't going to allow anyone to take something that doesn't belong to them," the clerk, Iraq War veteran Jon Lewis Alexander, told The ENQUIRER.

After Alexander stuck his firearm in the punk's face, the would-be thief backed out of the store – with Alexander's gun aimed at him the whole time.

"One of the cops told me later, 'You're a lucky man. That guy could have killed you,' " Alexander, 54, recalled.

"I said, 'No, I don't think so. He's actually the lucky one. I didn't pull the trigger. He isn't in the grave right now.'"

THE CREEP SURE DID GET LUCKY!

Alexander served 30 years in the military, including four tours in Iraq, where he manned a 50-caliber machine gun atop a Humvee.

Back in the States, Alexander was working at Beer:30 in Marionville, Mo., on Sept. 1 when the thug walked in around 9 p.m. He was

The convenience store where the heroic clerk works smoking a cigarette, and Alexander asked him to put it out.

"When he took the cigarette from his lips, I saw he was holding a gun down his side," said Alexander, a married man who's also been a prison guard and private investigator.

"He came up to the counter and told me, 'You need to give me all your (bleeping) money.'

"I saw that he was about to raise his gun and point it at me. But before he could,

I reached across the counter with my left hand and blocked his arm."

Video surveillance footage reveals the moment when Jon pulled out his gun in the nick of time just as the would-be robber was about to do the same

Alexander – who says he carries a loaded Walther PPX 9 mm handgun in a holster on his right hip for protection – reached for his own firearm.

"After I stopped him from raising his gun, I drew my weapon and rested it on his bottom lip," said Alexander.

"I leaned toward him and said, 'You need to get out of here or I'll blow your (bleeping) head off.'

"His eyes were glassy like he'd been drinking, or was on drugs, but he sure looked shocked. He didn't say a word and slowly backed out of the store.

"I kept my weapon pointed at him to make sure he didn't take a shot at me."

After the man left, Alexander called 911. The police have yet to make an arrest, even though the store's owners released surveillance footage of the drama.

Meanwhile, Alexander has been hailed as a hero.

"I've gotten a lot of positive feedback," he said. "People have told me they wished there were more people like me to stop people like him. One woman said, 'There
them.'"

 $I\ don't\ know\ {\mbox{about you, but I used to think the main reason}}$ we got wrinkles was because of too much sun. That's why I stayed out of the sun when I could... wore my sunblock when I went outside... and never, ever got within fifteen feet of a tanning bed. So I ask you... "Why am I still getting wrinkles?'

As you can imagine, when I saw an article at the dermatologist's office entitled immediately caught my attemasn "(anaotklyer") di cause of wrinkles). The article was all about how sugar ages your skin through a process called

"It's not just candy bars and soda. A glass of wine, a bow of pasta, a slice of bread... even excess protein, fruit and veggies eventually ocess called glycation... creating glycotoxins that produce wrinkles glycation. This forms advanced glyca-tion er ened, appropriately, to AGEs), which cause protein fibers to become stiff and malformed... The proteins in skin most prone to glycation are the same ones

onthat make a youthful complexion so plump even the most religiously sunscreened skin. Iturn into sugar (olucose) in the body with managade sugar at they become discolored, weak, and less supple; this shows up on the skin's surface as wrinkles, sagginess, and a loss of radiance."

What is glycation exactly? ELLE magazine explained it in a recent article called (what else?) "Sugar and Aging: How to Fight Glycation": "When you have sugar molecules in your system, they bombard the body's cells like a meteor shower - glomming onto fats and proteins in a process known as GlyTerra is a two-part system consisting of a 2% Theraglycan-3 "Day" Cream and a 4% Theraglycan-3 "Night" Cream."

If that wasn't bad enough, I also learned that grilling, frying, toasting and roasting foods all produce high levels of AGEs. So things like crusted breads, broiled chicken, grilled salmon, and coffee (the beans are roasted!) are all loaded with AGEs. Even granola — a health-nut staple — is an AGE double whammy, since it has lots of sugar AND it's toasted.

Why should you worry about glycation-related skin damage? "When you're in your teens and twenties, you can eat almost anything and get away with it," explains SanMedica International's™ Dr. Amy Heaton, PhD. "But as you age, your body is no longer in its peak collagen- and elastin-producing years and suffers more from the visible effects of glycation damage (wrinkles and saggy skin)."

How can you fight wrinkle-causing glycation? We can't stop eating, that's for sure. So it's easy to understand why a revolutionary new, topically applied, anti-glycation compound created a huge commotion at the 9th World Congress of Cosmetic Dermatology held in Athens, Greece. That's where research showing that this groundbreaking topical compound significantly reduced the amount of AGE content in actual human skin was presented to more than 1,000 of the world's foremost experts in the field of dermatology. As you would expect, it stole the show.

The compound is named Theraglycan"-3, and some are already calling it "The most significant breakthrough in skin care since the discovery of Retinol!" Why? Because this was the first time a topically applied anti-glycation, "anti-aging" compound had been tested to reduce actual AGE content in human skin and make it appear measurably younger... 8-10 years younger, to be exact.

Even more impressive was the fact that the AGE-reducing benefits of Theraglycan-3 weren't simply based on questionable subjective assessments. Instead, the AGE-reducing effects were validated using a highly formularized equation based on measurements taken by an AGE-Reader (a sensitive research instrument that uses autofluorescence to measure AGEs present in the skin). In the studies, women used a Theraglycan-3 cream twice a day (a 2% "day" cream in the morning and a 4% concentrated "night" cream before bed). The results of the studies documented an unequivocal 8-10 year differential based on actual AGEs remaining on the skin's surface research-based cosmeceutical companies in the world, SanMedica International, has just secured the exclusive rights to produce a Theraglycan-3 formula under the trade name GlyTerra™-gL. And, based on what I've heard so far, you better start looking for your supply of GlyTerra right now. The demand for this revolutionary anti-aging skin cream is going to make it very hard to find. Why? GlyTerra combines its full-strength Theraglycan-3 component with highly specialized, functional "anti-aging" isolates. So the bioactive compounds in this revolutionary formulation have been clinically shown to not only decrease the visible, age-related effects of "sugar damage," but also block surface glycotoxin formation to help shield the skin from future glyco-damage, as well as reduce the look of fine lines, deep wrinkles and crow's feet, improve the appearance of age spots, loose, droopy, flaccid skin, and most importantly — make everyone's complexion look healthier, more radiant, and significantly younger, Not even Retinol can do all that!

Where can you find Theraglycan-3?
One of the fastest growing (and most aggressive)

So don't spend the rest of your life worrying about "sugar damage." Go ahead and enjoy that glass of wine and breadstick at dinner. GlyTerra will help prevent your body from turning what you eat today into ugly wrinkles tomorrow... and that's something we can all drink to. See you at the cosmetic counter.

"In multiple studies, participants had fewer noticeable wrinkles, tighter, more vibrant-looking skin, and their skin was measurably 'younger'... 8-10 years younger, to be exact!"

More Than Just a Wrinkle Cream

While everyone is really excited about GlyTerra's effect on "sugar damage," let's not forget that Glyterra also reduces the appearance of existing fine lines, deep wrinkles and crow's feet... visibly improves the appearance of age spots and loose, droopy, flaccid skin... and — most importantly — makes everyone's complexion look healthier, more radiant, and significantly younger. Not even Retinol can do all that!

has declared a war on childhood obesity! Over a five-day period recently, the creator of Body by Jake exercise and health products delivered state-of-the-art Live Positively Fitness Centers to six elementary and middle schools.

"BY PROVIDING SCHOOLS WITH THE tools, we can, and will, win the war on childhood obesity," said Jake, chairman of the National Foundation for Governors' Fitness Councils. "Motivating and inspiring students will help them excel beyond their wildest dreams."

Georgia's Gov. Nathan Deal and Jake are helping to motivate kids

The goal is to build a nation of the fittest, healthiest kids in the world by bringing its National Champion Schools program to all 50 states in the coming year - and at no cost to taxpayers, as the program is funded through public/private partnerships.

"Physical activity and exercise help prevent and treat more than 40 chronic diseases, enhance individual health and quality of life, and reduce health-care costs," said Jake. "Not only will these students be healthier, they'll be more confident, have greater self-esteem and ultimately achieve greater academic success.

Online manhunt FALLS FLAT for domestic diva

of these guys"

OVE-STARVED Martha Stewart's attempt to find Mr. Right online has fallen flatter than a intimate love connection. collapsed souffle!

With much fanfare, the 72-year-old domestic diva announced on the "Today" show in April that she was going to land a man by using the Match.com Internet dating She hasn't gone service.

than 1,000 potential suitors, she narrowed the field down to international steel executive Larry Traub and commercial filmmaker Star After sifting through more and commercial filmmaker Stan Schofield, both 68. Shortly after, both appeared on the morning program with the multimillionaire entrepreneur.

MARTHA TALKED ENTHUSIASTICALLY about getting to know Larry over drinks and enjoying dinner with Stan.

"But the reality is she hasn't gone on any more dates with either of these guys," revealed a source close to the media mogul. "Martha is so darn finicky that she didn't really give Larry or Stan the time of day after their initial meeting."

When The ENQUIRER contacted Martha's two

"dates," neither hinted at a romance, let alone an

"Hopefully we can just remain friends," Larry told The ENQUIRER.

Stan also seems to have given her the big kiss-off, saying only: "I will always like Martha."

Although Martha vows to carry on with her manhunt, there don't appear to be any prospects on the horizon.

"If Martha continues with her picky attitude," said the close source, "she's destined to be a lonely old biddy."

In addition to Martha's dating disasters, the estranged daughter of New York multimillionaire builder Ben Krupinski, 66, recently claimed that Martha had an affair with her dad, who's been married to his wife Bonnie for more than 40 years. Reps for both Martha and Ben have denied the allegation.

FISH OIL could help alcohol abusers

Omega-3 fish oil may protect against alcoholrelated dementia.

Experts at Loyola University analyzed brain cells of rats exposed to large quantities of alcohol (the human equivalent of more than four times the legal limit for driving). The cells were then compared with brain cells also exposed to the same high levels of alcohol alongside a compound found in omega-3 fish oil.

Researchers found there was about 90 percent less inflammation and death in the brain cells protected by the fish oil compound.

Lead researcher Michael A. Collins is encouraged by the results but adds: "We don't want people to think it's OK to take a few

fish oil capsules and then continue to go on abusing alcohol."

Pregnant women who don't produce enough thyroid hormones are almost four times more likely to have autistic children than healthy women. In an effort to determine a cause of autism. Dutch and U.S. researchers studied more than 4.000 mothers and their children and found moms who were severely deficient in T4, also known as thyroxine, were most likely to have autistic children. "If you are planning to become pregnant, have your doctor measure urine iodine and thyroid function beforehand," advises Dr. Gustavo Roman of the Nantz National Alzheimer Center in Houston. "If you have just become pregnant, have your and thyroid function, and begin using prenatal vitamins, making sure iodine is present."

SURPRISINGCATARACT SURGERY

Cataract surgery to restore vision loss could help you live longer!

According to a recent study, Australian researchers found a 40 percent lower death risk among people who had the surgery compared to those who didn't have their vision corrected.

"Our finding complements the previously documented associations between visual impairment and increased mortality among older persons," says researcher Jie Jin Wang. "It suggests to ophthalmologists that correcting cataract patients' visual impairment...has important impacts on general health."

Warning! Underweight women with coronary artery disease double their chances of dying from the ailment.

But maintaining weight decreased the risk of death in obese women with CAD, according to a six-year Danish study.

Dr. Aziza Azimi suggests that underweight women diagnosed with CAD should gain weight "in order to reduce their risk of death."

🔼 A new drug shows promise as a breakthrough treatment for chronic pain with no apparent toxic effects.

Researchers at the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy have developed UMB 425, a drug as strong as morphine. Compared to other opioids, it can achieve pain relief with lower doses for longer periods.

Also absent are typical opioid side effects including constipation, nausea, drowsiness and dizziness.

While early results are promising, the pioneering medication requires further study before becoming available.

LEN FELDMAN'S BEST BETS this week

Halloween Wars (Season Premiere)

Sunday, Oct. 6. 9 p.m. ET. Food Network

Zombies can be neat, sweet and fun to eat! Get the bite on the walking dead for a change with this frighteningly fun seasonal series that literally turns vampires, werewolves, ghouls and boogeymen into eye candy. Five teams, each consisting of a pumpkin-carving expert, a cake artist and a candy craftsman, battle it out over the course of four weeks to create bonechilling Halloween displays out of pumpkin, cake and sugar. Last team standing takes home a monster cash prize of $50,000. First challenge: create a Zombie Prom Night display. Danielle Harris ("Halloween") is tonight's celebrity guest judge. Justin Willman ("Cupcake Wars") hosts.

Homeland

In the riveting Sept. 29 season premiere, Saul (Mandy Patinkin) plotted a risky counterstrike on the terrorists connected to the bombing of CIA headquarters in Langley - America's second 9/11. Tonight, Saul gets help from a dubious source to follow the money trail and track down those responsible for the attack. Meanwhile, Quinn, still plagued by the collateral damage from a recent mission, takes matters into his own hands. And Carrie (Claire Danes) learns who is really on her side in another intense episode of this smashhit series.

The Tomorrow People (New Show!)

Wednesday, Oct. 9, 9 p.m. ET, The CW

Stephen Jameson thinks the reason he's hearing voices and waking up in other people's homes is because he hallucinates and walks in his sleep. Actually, he's one of the "Tomorrow People," a new generation of humans capable of teleportation, telekinesis and telepathy, who are desperately trying to contact him. With Sunday, Oct. 6, 9 p.m. ET, Showtime the paramilitary group, Ultra, dedicated to wiping them out, Cara, John, Russell and the other teens of "Tomorrow" turn to Stephen, who has powers even they don't possess, as their savior. Actionpacked, instantly addicting and endlessly intriguing, "The Tomorrow People," based on the classic U.K. series of the same name, are here today - and it's about time!

Once Upon a Time in Wonderland (New Show!)

Thursday, Oct. 10, 8 p.m. ET, ABC

Pretty little Alice (Sophie Lowe) ended up in the looney bin after telling adults about Wonderland. So the White Rabbit (voice of John Lithgow) pulls the Knave of Hearts (Michael Socha) out of Storybrooke to rescue Alice from the doctor who wants to lobotomize her. Just in the nick of time, they take her back down the rabbit hole to find the mysterious Cyrus (Peter Gadiot), the genie she loved and thought was dead. With phantasmagorical special effects, wondrous sights aplenty and a story that gets "curiouser and curiouser" at every turn, this "Once Upon a Time" spinoff is the most enthralling trip to Lewis Carroll's immortal "Wonderland" yet.

OLTON CUMBIE - the most hated "Survivor" contestant ever - is back on the CBS reality show, but he's promised to clean up his act, sources say.

His outrageous antics on "Survivor: One World" in 2012 led to the hunky gay bad boy being blasted as racist, elitist and a bully.

Colton's mother even received death threats over his smack talking. But he still decided to compete on this season's "Survivor: Blood vs. Water," where he'll be squaring off against his fiance, Caleb Bankston.

"MY MOM GOT E-MAILS saying,

'You should kill yourself for having a child that way," Colton reportedly said.

A source close to the 22-year-old student teacher from Alabama added: "When Colton's mother told him about the threats, he was in tears.

"He publicly apologized for his behavior, and the threats slowed down. But they never stopped

"So when his family and friends learned he was returning to the show, they literally begged Colton not to go for fear the ugliness would start up again."

Colton dubbed himself "the evil queen" during his first shot on "Survivor." And complaints flooded CBS and the "Survivor" website after he called his African-American tribe mate Bill Posley "ghetto trash" and referred to Leif Manson, a little person, as a "Munchkin" and "Oompa Loompa." His unpopular run ended when he was forced to leave early due to a bacterial infection.

"This time around, Colton has promised to prove he's not a hateful person," said the insider. "Colton wants to make his mother proud this time." by PATRICIA SHIPP pshipp@national enquirer.com

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down.

In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

SOLUTION TO COLORCROSS #38, SEE PAGE 56

St.

E I T H E R snow nor rain nor heat nor FIRE could stop brave postal worker Jo Amerson from going above and beyond her normal duties to save the life of a pooch in danger.

The Pennsylvania mail carrier was out on her rounds on a blustery winter morning in February when she noticed smoke billowing out of a home in the Iffts Trailer Court along her route in Evans City.

Jo was immediately overcome with a sense of dread. There was a sport utility vehicle in the driveway, and she feared that the Pearce family, who lived there, might be trapped in the home.

JO DIDN'T HESITATE. IMMEDIATELY, SHE AND a neighbor, Ashley Kennedy, who had also noticed the growing blaze, began pounding on the mobile home's doors and windows.

When no one answered their pounding and cries, the women began smashing out windows. Jo finally managed to force open a back door – and that's when she spotted the family's dog, Diesel, lying motionless on the floor.

With no regard for her own safety, Jo darted into the burning residence, grabbed the 80-pound shepherd/lab mix by the collar and dragged him outside. Noticing that he wasn't breathing, she began performing CPR.

Initially, it didn't look good for the pup. But Jo refused to give up and, incredibly, Diesel soon opened his eyes and began to breathe on his own!

"It's a life," Jo said of her decision to risk her own well-being for Diesel. "It's a life, whether it's a dog, cat, animal – it's a life."

Fortunately, no one else was home at the time. Drew Pearce was at work when the fire broke out. His 10-year-old son, Brandon, was at school, while Drew's wife, Cindy, had left for a doctor's appointment with the couple's daughter, Casey, 3, just 10 minutes before the inferno erupted.

The family's SUV was still in the driveway because Cindy and Casey had hitched a ride to their appointment with Drew's sister. The vehicle was lost in the blaze along with all of the Pearces' other possessions – except Diesel!

DREW HAD NEVER MET THE HEROIC MAIL carrier prior to that day, but he says he'll be eternally grateful to her for saving their fourlegged family member.

"I'm just glad she found (Diesel) because he likes to hide," Drew noted.

While many people are praising Jo for her incredible courage, she remains modest about the events of that fateful morning.

"It's all in a day's work," she said. "I just did what anybody would do."
